Workers with the training you want...

Big Lakes Developmental Center operates training centers in Manhattan and Clay Center . These centers give individuals with developmental disabilities the skills they need in order to be successful before entering a competitive employment setting.

While at Big Lakes, workers learn the basics of good job performance as they acquire skills in material handling, environmental services, warehousing, assembly and sub-assembly production, clerical and filing work, and machine operation. Some workers receive specialized training in computer data processing.

By the time an individual enters the Big Lakes Employment Program, they have already shown a consistent, high level of job performance.

We Know BLDC Supported Employment Works

The Manhattan Mercury supports Big Lakes Employment Service. The clients are dependable and will do a good job. The coaching staff are always helpful and on top of their job.

Joyce Kirkendall,
Circulation Director
